The cross changes what counts.

When you belong to Jesus, your life should show it.
What are you boasting in?

BEYOND SUNDAY

Questions for reflection, conversation, and application

Connecting Together

1. What's something you've accomplished or received that you're genuinely proud of? Why is it meaningful to you?
2. Why do you think we're often tempted to measure our worth or success by what we've accomplished, what we own, or what other people think of us?

Connecting to the Passage

1. Read Galatians 6:11–13. What does Paul reveal about the motives of the people pressuring the Galatians to be circumcised? What were they really boasting about?
2. How can someone be involved in good, even religious, activities but still miss the heart of the gospel? Where do you see that temptation in the church today?
3. Read Galatians 6:14–15 again. Why does Paul say the only thing he wants to boast in is the cross of Jesus Christ? What does it mean that what ultimately matters is becoming a new creation?
4. What do you think Paul means when he says that the world has been crucified to him, and he to the world (v. 14)? How does following Jesus change the way we measure success, identity, and significance?
5. In verses 16–18, Paul speaks about walking by this rule, bearing the marks of Jesus, and living in His grace. What do these closing words teach us about what a life centered on the cross should look like?

Connecting to Application

1. Think about the things that tend to give you a sense of worth or significance. Is there anything—even something good—that has become too important in defining who you are?
2. What's one practical way your life could more clearly reflect that your identity is found in Jesus rather than in your accomplishments, reputation, or the approval of others?

This Week

1. Take some time this week to consider the question: What am I boasting in? Identify one thing you've been tempted to rely on for your sense of worth and intentionally redirect your attention to what Jesus has done for you. What might that look like in your everyday life?
