BEYOND SUNDAY

Questions for reflection, conversation, and application

Connecting Together

1. When you hear the word freedom, what comes to mind? How would you describe freedom to someone who has never heard the Gospel?

Connecting to the Passage

1. Read Galatians 5:1–6. Paul tells believers to stand firm in the freedom Christ has given them. What were the Galatians being tempted to return to? What are some ways Christians today can begin measuring their acceptance before God by their performance?
2. Read Galatians 5:6. Paul says that what counts is "faith working through love." How does this statement help us understand the relationship between faith, obedience, and love? Why does the order matter?
3. Read Galatians 5:7–12. Paul warns that a little leaven affects the whole lump. How can seemingly small distortions of the Gospel gradually change what we believe about salvation? How can we recognize and guard against those distortions?
4. Read Galatians 5:13. Paul warns against using freedom as an opportunity for the flesh. What might it look like to use our freedom selfishly? How does serving one another through love demonstrate the freedom Christ gives?
5. Read Galatians 5:14. Paul says the law is fulfilled in loving your neighbor as yourself. How does loving others express God's heart and fulfill what His law requires?
6. Read Galatians 5:15. Paul warns against biting and devouring one another. What attitudes or behaviors can slowly damage relationships within a church? How can Gospel-shaped love protect and strengthen our unity?

Connecting to Application

1. Where are you tempted to go back to slavery? Are there areas where you still feel you must earn God's approval, prove your worth, or measure your standing with Him by your performance?
2. Where are you using your freedom mostly for yourself? Consider your time, relationships, resources, and personal preferences. Where might God be calling you to shift your attention toward someone else's needs?
3. Who can you use your freedom to love this week? Identify one specific person and one practical way you can serve them without expecting anything in return.
